

European Commission

Technical Workshop

INVITATION

Nurses at the Mulago Teaching Hospital, College of Health Sciences (CHS), Makerere University, Kampala, Uganda © EU, image Mark Wamai

Working for a healthier future Promoting sustainable employment in the health sector

What Workshop to assess the situation, identify key challenges and develop policy solutions to promote sustainable employment in the health sector in developing countries.

When 01 April, 2019, from 09:00 to 17:30

Where Hotel Bloom, Rue Royale 250, 1210 Brussels

Who Employment and health sector policymakers, relevant civil society and academia, international organisations, EU institutions and EU Member State development agencies.

Why The health sector holds tremendous untapped potential for the creation of decent employment and inclusive economic growth, particularly for women and young people. The World Health Organisation estimates a shortfall of 18 million health workers by 2030, primarily in low and middle-income countries.

Yet, in order to get there, major investments are required in training, education and improving the quality and security of the health workforce, including the better management of workforce migration. The challenge is immense, but if we act now, the benefits can be transformative.

How One-day informative, interactive and participatory workshop to assess ways to increase investment in education and skills development, while ensuring the quality of health sector jobs, in terms of working conditions, labour protection and rights at work.

Register We kindly ask you to register your interest in joining this event by filling out this simple online registration form.
The programme and more information will follow.

International Cooperation and Development

If you have any question, please contact barbara.casado@bseurope.com / +32 2 286 95 22