The key steps of a citizens' initiative

- Preparation of the initiative and setting-up of a group of organisers;
- Registration of the initiative by the Commission with free translation into all official EU languages. In case of proposals (partly) outside the Commission's powers, revision by the organisers and partial registration are also possible;
- Publication on the European Citizens' Initiative website;
- Collection of statements of support, on paper and/or online;
- Verification of statements of support by national authorities;
- Submission of the initiative to the European Commission;
- Meeting with Commission representatives;
- Public hearing and assessment of the political support by the European Parliament;
- Official response from the European Commission;
- Follow-up by the Commission on proposed actions.

European Citizens' Initiative at a glance

The European Citizens' Initiative is an opportunity to become directly involved in the European democratic process, allowing you to have a greater say in EU policies that affect your life.

The European Citizens' Initiative is unique. It is the first tool that allows citizens from several EU countries to join together and propose concrete legal changes on a common cause.

As an EU citizen, you can either join a group of organisers to launch an initiative, or lend your support to an existing initiative.

To launch an initiative, it takes 7 EU citizens, living in at least 7 different Member States who are old enough to vote. Once an initiative gathers 1 million signatures, the Commission decides on what follow-up action to take.

A citizens' initiative is possible in any field where the European Commission has power to propose legislation, such as the environment, consumer protection, agriculture, fisheries, energy, transport or trade.

Creating networks and fostering debate

As European citizens we share common values and, even if we live in different countries, we can be passionate about the same issues. Through the European Citizens’ Initiative, you can join with other people from across the EU to rally around an issue close to your heart, foster debate around it and initiate reforms.

By enabling citizens from different countries to exchange ideas and come together, the European Citizens’ Initiative is one of the main tools offered by the European Union to encourage greater participatory democracy.

Speaking directly to decision-makers...
Speaking directly to decision-makers

Through the European Citizens’ Initiative, people across the EU can jointly bring their concerns to the attention of decision-makers. While it is always good to exchange ideas, the goal of the European Citizens’ Initiative is more concrete. The ultimate aim is to influence policy and promote change. Once the 1 million signatures are collected, the organisers present their demands directly, first to the European Commission, then publicly in the European Parliament, ensuring that their message is widely heard and discussed with their representatives and other interested parties.

Running an initiative creates networks, at regional, national and EU level, of people who are passionate about the same issue. This, in turn, serves to raise awareness and foster debate, including in the media, putting the subject firmly on the political agenda, even in cases where an initiative does not result in EU legislation.
